The Truth about Dyspepsia. Whosoever says that dyspepsia is incurable, tells a-that is to say, makes an egregious mistake. More than ten thousand aggravated cases have been cured by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, cured by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, while the number that have been prevented from coming to a head, by the same means, is incalculable. In this season of the year, when the appetite is sometimes too vigorous for the comfort and safety of the stomach, indigestion is most prevalent and most distressing. Is the appetite to be balked to accommodate the digestive organs? Not so; for then the frame would lack its due proportion of nutriment. The thing to be done is to STRENGTHEN THE STOMACH, tone the liver, and put the bowels in perfect order. Nothing will do this so effectually, so rapidly, so quietly, so pleasantly, as HOSTETT-EY'S BITTERS. This potent preparation trims and balances the system, and clothes it, as it were, with defensive armor. Chronic dyspepsia, liver complaint, and fever and ague are never known to attack those who are wise enough to invoke the aid of this great preventative.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Asthma, Influenza, Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Predisposition to Consumption, Sc., Sc.
This great remedy is too well known and is performing too much good to make it necessary to go into an elaborate discussion of its merits. Suffice to say that it still maintains its supremacy in curing diseases of the most obstinate character, and that all who suffer from the above complaints. all who suffer from the above complaints, a having tested this remedy, seldom have occasion resort to other appliances to insure a perfect re-ration to health.

Autumn.

No sound but the beech-nuts falling
Through the green and the yellow leaves,
And the rainy west wind calling
The swallows from the caves.
No fading trees are shedding
Their golden splendor yet;
But a sunset gleam is spreading,
That seems like a regret.

And the crimson-breasted birdie Sings his sweet funeral hymn On the oak tree grim and sturdy, In the twilight gathering dim. Death comes to pomp and glory; They fade—the sunny hours; And races old in story Pass like the summer flowers.

The Grape Gatherers. Golden-eared corn is once more in the turn again,
Dried up and brown is the lawn at the Grange,
Cracking and parched is the earth on the burn

Cracking and parched is the cartic on the again, again, Short-summered trees are now showing a change.

Sultry's the surshine so hot in the pinery,
Tropical plants are beginning to shoot,
Luscious ripe clusters bloom dark in the vinery,
Orchards are heavy with bright-colored fruit.

Thick hang the peaches one gathered so readily—
Sirunken the stream running down to the sea—
Plums on the wall ripen slowly and steadily,
To song of the reaper low hummeth the bee.
Nature's bedecked in her richest costumery,
Orange and russet are tinting the trees;
Heavy the air with the choicest perfumery,
Wafted on wings of the balmiest breeze.

Heat of the moontide is rising there hazily— Culling bright flowers their hair to entwine— Light-hearted lasses are lounging there lazily, Plucking the purple that hangs from the vine. Singing and laughing in fulness of pleasure there, Roving at random and choosing by chance, Piling up pictures of glowing rich treasure there, Worthy the pencil of Duffield or Lance.

Ruddy-bloomed clusters are getting importunate, Fain to be martyred along with the rest; Weep as they gaze on and envy the fortunate Rosebud asleep on my ladylove's breast! Would that my change unto grapes were per-missible!

Lovingly twining, I'd kiss and ne'er tell-Pressed close to lips so delightfully kissible, Ripe ruby lips of my sweet little Nell!

My Effort at Match Making.

I had silently watched my aunt for an hour—my aunt Katharine, who sat silently by the window with her sewing. Through the light meshes of the lace curtains the bright sunshine came in and fell upon her soft dark dress, smooth hair, and pretty white work, while the fresh breeze, floating in through the window, blew into bloom a certain pink upon her cheeks. And sitting there in the breeze and sunshine, I saw that my aunt Katherine was very handsome. At first I thought it strange that I had never noticed that fact before; but it was not strange, for children think nothing about their parents' or guardians' looks, except that they be pleasant, or unpleasant, and I was little more than a child. Ever since I could remember, aunt Katharine, with her dark dress, smooth hair and gentle ways, had taken care of me; and when I grew into a tail girl of fifteen, old enough to go to kissing parties and have young beaux, she watched over me still. She was my mother, my companion, my friend. I never realized my orphanage or want of other kin, but had been the same carcless, light-hearted, merry girl ever since I could remember, that I was on the June norming I watched her at work in the sunlight. She looked up at

"Addie, isn't it "most school-time?" she snid.

"Yes, auntie, I am going in a minute; but first tell me"—

"What, child?"

"Why you never were married."

"Because I never liked anybody well enough to marry him. Now go and get ready for school."

She smiled as she spoke, and after a glance at her face I smiled, too, and ran off up stairs to get my bonnet and satchel. Coming down stairs again, I put my thad in at the sitting-room door.

"Aunt Katharine!"

"Well!"

"If you found anybody whom you

"I don't know—I suppose so. Why, what in the world has got into your head, Addie?"
I laughed; slammed the door, and bounded through the hall into the road. Half way to the school house I met my teacher, Mr. Charles Devereux.
"Good morning, Miss 'Addie. Recitations all ready?"
"Yes, sir," I answered, and he passed:

'Miss Addie," said Mr. Devereux, as I passed by him on my way to my seat." do you have any trouble with those French verbs in learning your lesson?" "Yes, sir a little," I replied.

"You want a little reviewing, I think. If I have time, I will eall in at your house this evening, and help you a little will even are studying."

Mr. Devereux knew that I always studied in the evening, and had several times called in and spent an hour in assisting me with a particularly difficult task designed for the next day's recitation. So I was not surprised to hear him make this offer, though a little ashamed of the cause of it, as my failure had resulted from my willful mattenile and carelessness. I thanked him, however, with a flushed face, and went to my seat. But it was not entirely shame the cosy corner where I used to sit with him.

"Is it possible that you havn't been courting upon all this time, Mr. Devereux," I said.

"I stood untely starting at her. At last I found words to say, "Why, aunt Katharine, I thought it was I whom John was in love with you?" "You must ask him about that," she said, smiling through her tears.

And I did ask him the next evening of while he stood by an open window, and my aunt Katharine sat by John Aubrey in the cosy corner where I used to sit with him.

"Is it possible that you havn't been courting unt Katharine all this time, Mr. Devereux," I said.

How he laughed!

"Is it, possible that you don't know that I have been courting you all this time," "Mr. Devereux" I exclaimed.

John started and leaned back in his sent without saying a work.

Neither of the gentlemen stayed very late, John going away directly after Mr. Devereux, and I went to my room elated with my prosperity, or rather the prosperity of my plans.

I did not need assistance in my studies before Mr. Devereux came again, and before Mr. Devereux came again, and before Mr. Devereux came again, and after a short time it came to be a regular thing for him to spend an evening once or twice a week with us. With us. I say, because I could see that, though he admired my aunt Katharine very much, had too good taste to monopolize her company entirely, to the exclusion of mine. I enjoyed these evenings very much. It seemed to me that Mr. Devereux grew remarkably agreeable very on the June morning I watched her at last.

"Addic, isn't it "most school-time?" she said.

A few eyenings after, John made his appearance and entered the parlor where Mr. Devereux and I sat playing chess, while my annt was writing a letter at a side table. I thought it would be rather awkward for him at first, but he came forward easily, and after speaking to Mr. Devereux and myself, crossed the room and seated himself by my aunt. Pleased with this arrangement, I devoted myself to my game, and did not look around for some half an hour afterward, when my attention—was attracted by the when my attention was attracted by the sound of John Aubrey's voice, which though low, was remarkably earnest and emphatic. I turned my head and gazed in wonder. My aunt's cheeks were

So that when John came in, I went and sat down by him in a cosy corner, and left annt Katharine to entertain Mr. Devereux—a plan which I thought at first seemed to suit all round. But after a little time I saw John casting uneasy glances towards the place where Mr. Devereux, looking superbly handsome, sat talking with my aunt.

"You needn't be jealous of him, John," I said; "he's only my teacher."

John started and leaned back in his sent without saying a work.

ANTICIPATE THE ENEMY. The elements of innumerable diseases are afloan this raw, damp, mephilic season. Willyou de end yourself against them or not, good reader that is the question. A bottle or two of the IRRAT DEFENSIVE MEDICINE OF THE AGE HOSTATER'S HITTERIS, will so strengther not brace up your bodily powers as to enable HOSTETTER'S HITTERS, will so strengthen and brace up your boddly powers as to enable them to 'taugh a siege to scora.' The morbid matter which was exhaled in prespiration through your pores in summer, finds no such free egress now. A powerful counteracting agent is there fore needed, and you have it in HOSTETTER'S HITTERS. They neutralize the materies morbid from which disease originates, and regulate all the secretive organs. Nothing ran be more harmless or more healthful—nothing so potent to prevent or cure billousness, dyspepsia, fever und ague, constipation and general debility, as this wonderful corrective.

A touching incident has been related to as which we are sure will be the prompter of serious thoughts in things of all who shall hear of it:

In a distant city there dwells a lady of refinement and culture, who is celestrated for her musteal accomplishments, either the control of the city, and the same and the first performer in private circles, and the first performer in private to Christ, and she is a devoted laborer in the saving of sonis. By the providence of God she was led to contact the city, and when she went to effer her service, she asked for the care of the worst class in the school. The superintendent was struck by the novelty of the request, and knew not whether to attribute a gracious and praise-worthy courage.

A both to subject the contact of the city, and when she went to effer her service, she asked for the care of the worst class in the school. The superintendent was struck by the novelty of the request, and knew not whether to attribute a gracious and praise-worthy courage.

The former is nedicative of disease, and the latter shows that the unimal died from natural causes, Good meat has also a marbled appear ance from the ramifications of the little veins which surround the fat cells; its vens which surround the fat cells; its fat, especially that of the internal organs, is hard and suelv, and is never wet, whilst that of deceased meat is soft and watery, often like jelly or sodden parchiment. Again, the touch or feel of healthy meat is firm and clastic, and it hardly weighted. meat is firm and clastic, and it hardly moistens the fingnrs; whilst that of discased meat is soft and wet; in fact, it is often so wet that the liquid matter of the blood runs from it, in which case it is technically styled "wet." Good meat has but little odor, and this is not disagreeable; whereas diseased meat smells faint and cadaverous, and often has the odor of medicine. This is best observed by cutting it and smelling the knife, or by pouring a little warm water on it. Good meat will bear cooking without shrinking, and without loosing much weight; but bad meat shrivels up, and it often boils to pieces.

Eveny Family should have a case of Dr. Hum-rarrys' Specific Homosopataic Medicines. They are simple, casily applied, haimless, and yet, in a thousand instances, they arrest disease, allay pain and suffering, save calling the doctor, and plove a friend indeed. The valuable service ren-dered immensely overbalances the small sum they cost. See advertisement. Address. Humpharry' Homosopathic Medicine Co., 562 Broadway, N. Y.

SIXTH MIDDLESEX REPUBLICAN
SENATORIAL CONVENTION.—The Republicans or the Sixth Middlesex Senatorial District, comprising the towns of Bedford, Billerica, Burlington, Lexington, Melrose, Reading, Stoneham, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn, met in Convention in the Town Hall, this place, at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, for the nomination of a candidate for Senator.

Senator.

The Convention was called to order by J. G. Pollard, Esq., when Hon. O. R. Clark, of Winchester, was elected Chairman, and Geo. H. Conn of Woburn, Sec-man, and Geo. H. Conn of Woburn, Secretary.

Messrs. Upham of South Reading, Carter of Winchester and Wakefield of Tewksbury, committees on credentials, reported twelve towns represented by forty-two delegates of two each from Bedford, each claiming to be rightfully elected, and that the other was elected by a secret meeting, or controlled by those who were not Republicans. After explanations by each side, which did not satisfy the Convention of the regularity of either of them, it was voted to admit the chairman of each of the delegations to seats in the Convention. to seats in the Convention.

The elements of innumerable diseases are afloat in this raw, damp, mephitic season. Will you defend yourself against them or not, good reader. That is the question. A bottle or two of the ITOSTETTER'S BITTERS, will so strengthen and brace up your bodily powers as to enable them to 'laugh a siege to seem.' The morbid matter which was exhaled in prespiration through your pores in summer, finds no such free egress now. A powerful counteracting agent is therefore needed, and you have it in HOSTETTER'S BITTER'S. They neutralize the materies morb from which disease originates, and regulate all the secretive organs. Nothing can be more harmless or more healthful—nothing so potent to prevent or cure billouness, dyseppsla. Fever und ague, constipation and general debility, as this wonderful corrective. ANTICIPATE THE ENEMY.

The Boston Journal is much the most profitable paper in New England.

The salary of Theodore Tilton as editor of the Independent is $5,000 a year.

Out of fifty newspapers started in the United States only one ever reaches the point of paying expenses.

The Sunday issue of the Philadelphia Press has been discontinued. The last number appeared yesterday.

If rumor be credited, Dana's new paper will have just two hundred and forty-three editors on its staff.

The Washington Evening Star was sold the other day for $125,000—a good price for a small-sized paper. James Parton is said to be incubating on the idea of a weekly newspaper. He would better adhere to biography.

The salary of Horace Greeley ($7,500) as editor-in-chief of the Tribune is much the highest paid in New York.

The entire force of the Herald, including editors, reporters, and correspondents, is said to number over two hundred

The new enterprise in San Francisco, the Times, has already sunk $150,000; but it expects to reach a turning point

Thus they lay the fond unction to their souls that they are travelling inceg. But, good gracious, how badly fooled they are. It is one of the easiest things in the world to the careful eye to tell precisely how many days, or even hours, they have been "spliced." They can sometimes be detected by the great pains they take to appear like old married people or cousins as they promenade the deck of a steamer, or sit so demurely in the cars. In many cases their dress, in part, expose them.

It is so apropos to the occasion, being neat, symmetrical and bran new. In cases where the parties have good faste, there is no gaudiness or "flubdubbing" about their attire. All glitter and display are thrown aside, and city belle appears more like a Quakeress in her simple traveling dress of drab or mouse color.

The new edifice for which the Conference has liberally contributed, is nearly finished, and it is understood that only experience for the amount needed to pay for it is now wanting. A committee consisting of Rev. Messrs. Barrows, Robinson, Bliss, and Wilcox, Dea. Kimball, and Dr. Cutter, of Woburn, and Dea. Clark, of Winehester, was appointed to confer with the people at Lexington favoring the movement in reference to the dedication of the building, the organizing of a church, and the calling of a pastor.

A discussion was had on "The duty of the Church with reference to the outpouring of the Spirit." The subject was subdivided as follows:

The mellow year is hasting to its close;
The little birds have almost sung their last;
Their small notes twitter in the dreary blast—
That shrill-piped harbinger of early snows.
The patient beauty of the scentless rose,
Oft with the moru's hoar crystal quaintly glassed.
Hangs, a pale mourner for the summer past,
And makes a little summer where it grows.
In the chill sunbeam of the faint, brief day
The dusky waters shoulder as they shine;
The russet leaves obstruct the straggling way.
Of cozy brooks, which no deep banks define;
And the guant woods, in ragged, scan array,
Wrap their old limbs with sombre ivy twine.

TWO LOVES.

My wedded lore is fast asleep,
The white lids closed o'er marvellous eyes
That shrine a meaning, pure and deep,
As midnight's far, unfathomed skies—
Her heart upon the tide of dreams
Is heaving like a fairy boat,
And o'er her face the mystic gleams
Of tender thoughts and memories float

My earlier love I could not wed Is slumbering, too - but f My carlier love I could not wed
Is slumbering, too, -- but far away—
She sleeps among the tranquil dead,
And, couched upon the churchyard clay,
Her lids are closed o'er soulless eyes;
Her pulseless heart is mute and cold—
But thought is busy where she lies,
And memory wakes beneath the mould.

TRUTH IN JEST.

In January, 184—, I was a passenger on board the Washington, bound to New York. There were others, and among them a lady named A——. She was an English woman, but had married an American, a merchant of New York. Though neither handsome nor accomplished the was yet a yet agreeable. Though neither handsome nor accomplished, she was yet a very agreeable woman; she had good sense and good feeling. Although there was some of what the French call empressement in her manners, it was untinctured with coarseness or forwardness. Her children accompanied her, two fine, healthy boys, whose gambols afforded amusement to all on board.

As a matter of course, travellers by sea do everything in their power to abate the irksomeness of their situation. Mighty are their efforts to kill time; on all isides, and with all kinds of weapons, they can assail him, but in vain; time will not be killed by them. Old though he be, he has the strength of Hercules in his prime. When they think they have him fast, and are about to administer the coup de grace, he escapes from their hands and laughs them to scorn.

On board the Washington, as on board other vessels, the passengers talked a great deal and on a great many subjects. One day the conversation turning on medicine and its practitioners, I asked Mrs. A — what she thought of those in New York.

"Very highly," she repiled. "But among them is one of whom I think more highly than all the rest put together; that is Dr. B—, a native of Baltimore, and the gentleman who attended my family."

on Dr. B-, which would have been appropriate enough if bestowed on a Sydenham, but on nobody else.

Amused at her warmth, I jokingly remarked:

Amused at her wather, you to be marked:

"Doubtless, Mrs. A—, were you to be come a widow, you would marry this Dr. (AWES & Box5123.

"I become a widow!" she exclaimed, what an idea! Why, my husband is only intry-five years of age, and a remarkably healthy man; he never had a day's illness in his life."

"Possibly not," I replied, "but remarkably healthy men are often cut off, especably healthy men are

President:

By the President of the United States of

In conformity with a recent custom that may now be regarded as established by national consent and approval, I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do hereby recommend to my fellow citizens that Thursday, the twenty-circh days of Newsley rock best errors. eighth day of November next, be set apar and observed throughout the Republic as and observed throughout the Republic as a day of National thanksgiving and praise to the Almighty Ruler of Nations, with whom are dominion and power, and who makes peace in His high places.

Resting and restraining from secular labor on that day, let us reverentially and devoutly thank our Heavenly Father for the mercies and blessings with which He has crowned the now closing year. Essentially and the second of the sec pecially let us remember that he has cov-ered our land throughout its extent with the greatly needed and very abundant ered our land throughout its extent with the greatly needed and very abundant harvests; that He has caused industry to prosper not only in our fields but also in our fores's; that He has permitted us to multiply our ships upon our lakes and rivers, and upon the high seas, and, at the same time, to extend our iron roads so far into the secluded places of the con-

Behold me once more in New York. The journey from New Orleans, inland, is fatiguing, even to the strong. To me, an invalid, it was killing. I felt so ill the day after my arrival that I decided on sending for a physician. Recollecting, what Mrs. A— had said in praise of Dr. B—, I sent for him. He came, and I found him, if not the paragon Mrs. A— had represented him, a physician of more than ordinary abilities, and of very good manners, withal. After prescribing for me, and receiving the customary fee of two dollars, he was about to leave the room, when a few words from me nailed me to the spot. They were these:

"Pray, doctor, is Mrs. A—still in New York?"

He cole real slight—looked first at me, then at his boots—at length said:

"She is, and in my house; we were married a monh ago,"

I was thanderstruck. "Many a true word spoken in jest."

H. G. SPAULDING, IN THE INDEPEN-

H. G. SPAULDING, IN THE INDEPENDENT says:

Is it not a striking proof of that harmony which exists between the cultivated Christian heart and the life of an outward nature, that the White Hills of New England and the snowy Nevadas of distant California first found a voice in Starr King? As I have visited the scenes which he loved so well, and have thought of his life, so devoted to the duties of his sacred calling, yet in such constant communion with Nature; as, in recollection, I have followed him, speaking to vast multitudes from pulpit and platform, in behalf of Christian duty and Christian culture, while at the same time he was listening year after year to the Eternal voice that spoke to him from mountain summit and deepening glen of his favorite New Hampshire; and as I have recalled him, engaged, at the last, in those ceaseless labors on the far Pacific coast, pleading in the name of Christ for liberty, holiness and love, yet looking ever with eager eye to the snow-capped Sierras, refreshing his own and others' souls as he read aloud the lessons of that wonderful scenery; my thoughts have turned from the disciple to the Master, the ancient way of loyalty, concession, and brotherly love.

He has blessed the peaceful efforts with which we have established new and important commercial treaties with foreign nations, while we have at the same time treatly enlarged.

Western Trade.—The increase of Western trade is indicated by some figures given by the Chicago Board of Trade. The first shipment of wheat from that part was 78 bushels in 1833. In 1848 it had reached more than three million bushels; in 1858 it was raising thirty millions; last year it was sixty-seven millions; and the increase is now as rapid as the means of transportation will permit. The slaughtered cattle in 1851 were 21,806; and in 1864 the numof their constituency, giving them the credit of knowing what are their own best interests. The Commonwealth, like an individual, is bound to enact such laws, adopt such measures, even by sacrifice, as will favor justice and construction of the c rifice, as will favor justice and exercise a beneficent influence. In this age of a free and Christian people, where the mass of mankind are rising to a condition of consciousness, intelligence, and self respect, is it not the tendency of each individual to secure more and more his rights? and is it not plain that they will not resign themselves to that lav that places the people under a private ture. and almost irresponsible power, that is arrogant and overbearing? The moral sentiment of community is not corrupt on the point of temperance, but they wiser and more discreet law that shall comport with that independency of character peculiar to the men of this

A "playful" wife in Springfield, Massachusetts sent a note to her husband recently, written in a disguised hand, signed with a fictitious name, stating that she had often seen and admired him and if he would inform her of a place of meeting she would go over to the rooms, and they would become better acquainted. Husband answered the note at once, appointing time and place of meeting. Both parties met at the appointed time and place, the lady heavily veiled, and proceeded to the rooms where the veil was removed, and a grand tableaux not down in the bills ensued. STATE DEBTS.—When speaking of the Public Debt, the debts of the States are usually left out of account. They only appear in State documents, and are not easily calculated in a lump. The debts of cities and towns, which form another large aggregate, are still more difficult to get at. Altogether, the public in debtedness of the country cannot be less than three thousand millions at the present time. This amount represents the dead loss by the war; yet it does not show the whole extent of that loss, which also includes the decreased rate of development while the war raged, and the BOSTON, Sept. 21, 1867. A Card to Sensible People. A Card to Sensible People.

Rational reader, it the aspect of the weather was uncertain, you would not be foolish enough to venture out without an overcoat or an umbrella. The forecast, then, to protect yourself at this darge forecast, then, to protect yourself at this darge forecast, then, to protect yourself at this darge forecast, then the fooling portant than either of these articles. Since your sornant than either of these articles will be forecast, and the fooling portant and solve to be fooling to the fooling portant and solve to the fooling the fooling portant and post of the fooling portant and fooling the fooling the fooling the fooling the fooling portant fooling the fooling preparations this is the safest, the surest, the most genial. As a remedy, as well as an antidote, for dyspepsia, ever and ague, and liver disease, there is no combination of vegetable specifies at present known which even approaches it in efficacy.

ANTICIPATE THE ENEMY. In elements of innumerable diseases are affinithis raw, damp, mephilic season. Will you fend yourself against them or not, good read That is the question. A bottle or two of GREAT DEFENSIVE MEDICINE OF THE AUGSTETTER'S BITTERS, will so strength and brace up your bodily nowers. HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, will so strengthen and brace up your bodily powers as to enable them to 'faugh a siege to scorn." The morbid matter which was exhaled in prespiration through your pores in summer, finds no such free egress now. A powerful counteracting agent is there fore needed, and you have it in HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. They neutralize the materies morb from which disease originates, and regulate all the secretive organs. Nothing can be more harmless or more healthful—nothing so potent to prevent or cure billounness, dyspepsia, fever und ague, constipation and general debility, as this wonderful corrective.

There are some people who choose begging as a profession. It is an estate inherited from their fathers, and often handed down from generations. Work of any kind is repulsive. The wandering, free, indolent life, without eare or responsibilities, with its cold scraps and nights, unfottered by rules, is sweeter than the bread well-carned.

sibilities, with its cold scraps and nights, infectered by rules, is sweeter than the bread well-earned.

Living on the highway, between Philadelphia and New York, we had opportunities for the interesting study of the class called "tramps." One fine morning in June a stalwart Norman presented himself. Having a liking for the language, we always feel a tenderness toward the natives of that land of profound poets and moonshine philosophy; but we could not help remarking that this applicant looked healthy and able to work. "Ah, but unadame," he said, in pathetic broken Engilsh, "I hade great grief in dis country; I loose my fraw on de great deep; she is no more, and I hafe sechs shilders, but zwei is dend mit de fever, what you call red; I can not de word."

Mr. Clement Lindsay appeared sud-denly in that important locality, and re-paired to his accustomed quarters at the house of Deacon Rumrill. That worthy house of Deacon Runrill. That worthy person received him with a certain gravity of manner, caused by his recollection of the involuntary transgression into which Mr. Lindsay had led him by his present of Ivonhoe. He was, on the whole, glad to see him, for his finances were not yet wholly recovered from the injury indicted on them by the devouring element. But he could not forget that his boarder had betrayed him into a breach of the fourth commandment, and that the strict eyes of his clergyman had detected him in the very commission of the offence. He had no sooner seen Mr. Clement comfortably installed, therefore, than he presented himself at the door of his chamber, with the book enveloped in strong paper, and very securely tied his chamber, with the book enveloped in strong paper, and very securely tied round with a stout string.

"Here is your volum, Mr. Lindsay," the deacon said. "I understand it is not the work of that great, good man who I thought wrote it. I should recommend you, as "I will take good care that none of your young people see this volume," Mr. Clement said. "I trust you read it yourself, however, and found something to please you in it. I am sure you are safe from being hardened by any such book. Didn't you have to finish it, Deacon, after you had once begun?"

"Well-I-I-perused a consid'able portion of the work," the deacon answered, in a way that led Mr. Clement to think he had not stopped much short of Finis.—Holmes' Guardian Angel.

Sunday duly observed, we may commend this incident to an over-zealous class, who, living in the enjoyment of all the "modern conveniences," and with the ability to indulge in servants, carriages, new clothes, any amount of comfort and luxury, are yet pharasaically bent on compelling everybody, however poor and ill-conditioned, to keep the Sabbath according to the letter of their creed:

A lady had gone to visit a young comple of the better class of the poor. They had as yet no children, and the husband being a stoker on a railway, they were above the reach of want. Under these circumstances, it seemed to the visitor that they might have attended to their religious duties at least to the extent of going to church on Sundays, and she ventured to intimate as much to the young water who was exactly in the fellow. going to church on Sundays, and she ven-tured to intimate as much to the young woman, who was standing rather idly at the door. "Will you please walk in till I show you something?" was the woman's answer; and she conducted her visitor to the little kitchen where her husband sat by the fire. He thought his face and tongue were frozen, but I found they were not. He was in no condition to enjoy the occasion, and after remaining about ten minutes we;set out on the ascent. Mr. R. brought up a thermometer, which was placed outside on the knapsack of one of the guides, exposed to the sun; and in this situation; which we were obliged to cross on a thin bridge of snow, not more than a foot thick in the centre, through which we easily thrust our batons. The guides hesitated for a moment, but there was no other way, and we decided to risk the bridge, which we crossed in safety, one at a time, on our hands and knees. About two hundred feet above the guilf we were verticed by a violent saw stern. on the knapsack of one of the glides, exposed to the sun; and in this situation it indicated 18° above zero. I shaded the glass with one of our knapsacks for about five minutes, in which time it went down to 14°. I do not think it could have been more than 10° above. The descent in places was more difficult and dangerous than the ascent but was much sooner. overtaken by a violent snow storm, renovertaken by a violent snow storin, rendering further progress impossible and retreat difficult. We now realized the peril of our situation. Only our strong Alpine batons, firmly planted in the solid snow, kept us from being blown from the mountain side, and hurled into the gaping chasm we had but just passed—the same where, in 1820, three guides were same where, in 1820, three guides were ing chasin we had but just passed—the same where, in 1820, three guides were lost, and their bodies never recovered. This, however, was no time for gloomy reflections, nor were they indulged in. Slowly and carefully we retraced our steps, recrossed the crevasse, and reached in safety the Grand Plateau. By this time the storm had increased to such a

Now that the thing is done and the excitement over, I can say the ascent of Mont Blanc don't pay; the danger is greater and the labor more than I anticipated. I am, however, glad to have been there, but do not care to repeat it; nor would I recommend it as a pleasure excursion for ladies or nervous gentlemen.

excursion for lances on the men.

I stood the trip quite as well as either one of the guides, and even better, I think. My face is badly burned, especially my nose, which seems completely to be cooked. Nature seems not to have decided yet whether to furnish me a new one or restore the old. Otherwise, I am none the worse for the trip. Yours truly,

Miss Anna E. Dickinson gives the following explanation of her erasure of Andrew Jonhson's signature from the School Ship book, that presents this case in a much more favorable light for her than has before been stated. It seems that the was shown the book by a gentleman whose projectly she supposed it to be. Holding her pea in an impulsive moment over Mr. Johnson's man, she said she should like to draw a mark across it. The gentleman immediately replied, "I wish you would do so, Miss Dickinson." Believing the book to be his property, and regarding this not only as a permission but a request, she immediately did the act, without the least iden that she was trespassing upon any other rights. We beg leave to ask a candid perusal by an "impartial public" of the above agreement as bearing upon the integrity and fair dealing of a man, who, after executing such an agreement that he would not engage in the business in town for three years, resumes his business not only within the short space of four months, but also procures a lease of the store he has sold out for the purpose of forcing the purchasers to buy him out a second time, or be turned into the street-with their stock of goods. He has not paid his body, and therefore has no right to engage in business, according to his agreement, his circulars to the contrary notwithstanding.

be the case in larger and more compact communities. A person of unbiased judgement would pronounce the fashion of women's attire, which prevails here with many of the farmers wives and daughters, to be much more sensible than many of the ridiculous frivolities that obtain in our large cities. By less frequent changes in costume, both time and money would be saved; and this fact seems to be, in some degree, practically appreciated in this goodly town. This is not owing to any want of pecuniary ability, but may be attributed to the entire absence of improvement which many of be the case in larger and more compact advocate of woman's rights, I would accord to them the largest liberty in adorning their persons as their fancy may dictate; and they should enjoy this liberty without any fault-finding on the part of the man; which, by the way, is entirely useless, as the woman will do just as they please in the matter. The silent circle fan themselves, and quake;
But here the needle pilent is busy task,
The pattern grows, the well depicted flower
Wrought patiently into the snewy lawn.

ANTICIPATE THE ENEMY.

The elements of innumerable diseases are affoat in this raw, damp, mephitic season. Will you defend yourself against them or not, good reader? That is the question. A bottle or two of the GREAT DEFINITIVE MEDICINE OF THE AGE. (HOSTETTER'S HITTER'S, will so strengthen and brace up your baddly powers as to enable them to lough a siege to scorn." The morbid matter which was exhaled in prespiration through your pores in summer, finds no such free eyess fore needed, and you have it in HOSTETTER'S BITTER'S. They neutralize the materies morbitrom which disease originates, and regulate all the secretive organs. Nothing can be more harmless or more healtiful—nothing so potent to prevent or cure billousness, dyspepsia, ferer und age, constitution and general debility, as this wonderful corrective.

You are wrong there, my boy; I am not fond of children, generally speaking, but I don't know who could help loving that little brown-eyed seraph.

Frank took up the newspaper as he spoke, and the conversation gradually merged into the all-entrancing subject of politics, foreign and domestic.

Twenty years have ebbed and flowed in the broad channel of time, and Mr. and Mrs. Tracey had just taken possession of their elegant home after a long residence abroad. It was evening. The gilded clock on the mantel pointed to the hour of seven, the fire burned clearly in the several vases on each side of the chimney-piece were searcely brighter in the superb velvet carpet. Frank Tracy, who had changed from handsome youth into a tall, stately man of about forty, stood thoughtfully before the fire, while a few parts of the new governess was announced.

And so some days afterward, when the studen death of Mrs. Tracy was announced in the newspapers—allment, disease of the heart, his first thought was—by that a lucky thing for Frank.'

It was scarcely a year after Mrs. Tracy's decease, and the widower was siting alone in his study, when Howard Leigh was announced.

Well, my dear friend!' was his smiling salutation, what news do you bring me? 'Capital news!' said Leigh. 'Do you know, I've just engaged a splendid governess for your children?'

I am heartily glad of it; the little rebulous priest about a many as 63,000,000. When in good know, I've just engaged a splendid governess for your children?'

the subject the consideration of a careful reading. But I have not the patience to read anything advocating the sneaking expedient of paying the national debt in depreciated currency. The Secretary of the Treasmy is sound on that subject, and in his forthcoming annual report will address an argument to Congress and the country that I am sure will please you and those who are neither knaves nor fools.

The finance question is to become the leading one in the reorganization of par-our old acquaintance Howard Leigh.

'I do wish, Frank, you wouldn't keep drumming with your fingers on that mantel, it makes me nervous, but of course you do not care for that,' exclaimed Mrs. Tracy, petulantly.

'I beg your pardon, my love; I was not aware that I was annoying you.'

'Why don't the servant bring up the chocolate?' pursued Mrs. Tracy, clevating her eyebrows.

'Shail I ring and enquire?'

'No, it isn't worth while. If we had only remained in la belle Paris, where the servants understood their business,'

'Then you preferred Paris as a residence,' said Leigh.

'Oh, by all means, but Frank never could be contented there. It is the most absurd whim of his, returning to Americal'.

'You forget, Leonore,' said Frank, somewhat gravely, that America is home' Mrs. Tracy tossed her head and took refuge in a bottle of smelling saits. Her husband turned carelessly to Leigh and resumed the conversation that her petulance had disturbed.

Golden Wedding.

The residence of our esteemed fellow-townsman, Mr. John Carroll, was the scene of a very pleasant festival on Wednesday evening, the 27th ult. The occasion was the littleth anniversary of the marriage of the genial host and hostes, and hence their golden wedding. A houseful of their many and warm friends were present, by invitation. The individual offerings of respect and esteem for the worthy pair were concentrated upon a few articles of special value. These gifts consisted of a golden headed cane, and apair of gold spectacles, for Mr. C., a silver ice pitcher, salver and two gold lined goldets, a gold lined cake basket, and a beautifully lined copy of Harper's illustrated Bible for Mrs. C. In addition to these there were seen lying in regal dignity upon the table six double eagles, as a contribution from their six sons—flive of whom reside in California. This was a most tempting display to the many

The congratulations, interspersed with the jokes and repartees of the quick-witted bride, being ended, and the presents or aming and solving the formula was accounted.

Champney.

Mr. Carroll replied for himself and wife in most feeling and appropriate terms. He thanked his many friends most sincerely for these valuable testimonials of their regard. They were as unexpected to them as they felt them to be undescreed. The sphere of his labor had always been humble, but it had ever been his purpose to act the part of a man. There was one gentleman, he said, to whom he felt more indebted for his success in life than to any other. When he was struggling with poverty and misfortune that man, in the most disinterested and noble manner, came forward and told him that he ought to build a house; that him that he ought to build a house; that lways been hum.

We did not hesitate to pledge $100 to what seemed to us so good a work, and Miss Wynne came to Framingham early in September, and entered that excellent school. Letters received from the Principal, Miss Johnson, speak of her as "bright and promising," and as devoting herself with energy to her studies while she writes herself with hope and cheer fulness of her school work and her little housekeeping, for of course she lives in

To raise the small sum we had promised we gave a Promenade Concert, which we supposed would give the citizens of the town an agreeable evening, with good wayis an agreeable evening, with good music, an opportunity for so-cial intercourse and suitable refreshments. cial intercourse and suitable refreshments. The programme, as far as we were concerned, was carried out; the band played finely, kind friends from Woburn gave us delightful songs, the refreshments were all good, but the social element was wantall good, but the social element was wanting,—there were not people enough (of any denomination) to give it,—and so the whole thing was a failure. We were more than forty dollars poorer at the end of the evening than at the beginning, and have our $100 yet fo get. The loss was handsomely made up to us the next day, by some friendly gentlemen, but we shall repay it if we can, and the $100 we must make in some way, for we have promised.

THE FACTS .- Mrs. Howard M. Ford has suffered, for some time, from stricture of the gullet, and on Wednesday, Dec. of the giffet, and on Wednestiny, Dec. 27th, a piece of chicken which she was about to swallow lodged in the throat. Dr. Cutter was called and the difficulty removed, but not without considerable trouble. The throat was, of course, much inflamed, but was getting better when she suddenly died of trouble from the heart.

The man entered, and the anxiety appears to be in a probable excess of prosperity and in the want of a good grievance. We seem nearly at the end of those great public wrongs which require a special moral earthquake to end them. Except to secure the ballot for woman-a contest which is thus far advancing very peaceably -- there seems nothing left which need be absolutely fought for; no great influence to keep us from a commonplace and perhaps a debasing success. There will, no doubt, be still need of the statesman to adjust the details of government, and of the clergynan to keep an eye on private morals, including his own. There will also be social and religious changes, perhaps any very flerce uphcaval. And seeing the educational value to this generation of the reforms for which it has contended, and especially of the anti-slavery enterprize, one must feel an impulse of pity for our successors, who seem likely to

> NORTH WOBURN HORSE RAILROAD.

The road built by this company from North Woburn to Woburn Centre having been so far completed as to allow the connection with the trains to and from Woburn Branch Railroad depot the maority of the Board of Selectmen, Thomas J. Pierce, William Totman, Jacob Brown, E. P. Claffy, Everett Thompson, passed in a special car provided by Superintendent Thompson, for the purpose of examining the track, its grading, curvatures, adapability to the convenience of the public generally, and, if such examinations show satisfactory results, to accept it in behalf of the town. These gentlemen rode over the road to the Company's buildings at North Woburn and thoroughw critized it and all its appurtenances. After this examination they were cordially invited to the residence of Col. Winn, the President of the Board of Directors of the Company, where they examined a draft of the track as laid, prepared and explained by engineer S. J. F. Thompson.

After the conclusion of the duty devolving upon them the gentlemen of the Board of Selectmen and of the Board of sure Directors, and other guests, were regaled by the most generous hospitality of Col. Winn, who aided them to a table laden with the most bountiful repast that ever cheered the heart of man, and with the urbanity of the genial host and courteousness of the true gentleman entertained them. May his shadow never be less.

Of the road we can truly say it is prov-ing itself a decided success, and that too in the most unpropitious season of the year. For the four weeks ending Deyear. For the four weeks ending De-cember 5 over thirty-one hundred people have travelled over this road netting the company a handsome sum which far ex-ceeds their most sanguine expectations. The road is paying expenses, and a good sum better. We are glad to record such a statement, and believe that when it shall a statement, and believe that when itsman be put in thorough running order, the iurnouts, grading, and such work as the present inclement season retards the completion of, are finished, in the better seasons it will prove a very profitable seasons it will prove a very profitable investment.

But this enterprise was not entered upon in a speculative mood. It was undertaken more as a public convenience by the public-spirited men who now represent this company, and as such it is winning even the approbation of those most prejudiced at the start, for North Woburn is now brought hearer. Boston, and men residing out from the Centre, along the line of the road, are as conveniently sin-revival is, each day, becoming small, and we are well satisfied with the course of events in this direction for naught but harm could result from the impeachment of the President of the United States. It will prove a far better course to pursue to allow Mr. Johnson to serve out the term of office to which he has acci. the term of office to which he has accidentally been lifted and then take the back seat provided for treason, but which his own pusillanimity has kept vacant. Bitter words and hard names effect no good, and such vituperation as many of the disappointed indulge in is worse than useless, for it reflects more upon the accuser than the accused. Wait patiently and learn the lesson well that has been forced upon the people by the degrading sycophancy of political intriguers, that principles are the truest test of a man's availability to the office of the Chief Magistrate of America.

Already the political wires are being manipulated for the coming presidential campaign, and a man, a citizen who is well worthy of the gratitude of every heart, is being brought forward for the suffrages of the people, but no one of all him politically nor can tell if he will prove committed to an act that we must take four years to repent of. It was Christmas morning at our house, and at everybody's, for that matter, and of course Uncle Theodore, or Uncle Ted, as we called him oftenest, was cross. He always was in the mornings; we expected that just as much as we did the sun's of that just as much as we do the sun's rising.

There was a good deal of excuse for him, though, for he was dyspeptic and was subject to twinges of gout and touches of neuralgia; and any one of those infirmities, mamma says, would make a sinner, for the time being, out of the tenner of a saint.

But it was Christmas morning, and I knew Uncle Ted well enough to know that it would "go across the grain" to say one word about the presents I'd found in my stocking and spread out on the table by my bedside.

"Tut, tut!" he'd say. "Don't lets have any fuss over this gimeracks," though he rode away down town with mamma and Adelaide in the damp, biting December air only the afternoon before to select the gifts himself.

And Christmas at home.

"And as I lay there, and heard the slipike a magpie over each, but now it would not be of a particle of use. We all understood Uncle Ted and humored sects, and the singing of the birds in that sects, and the singing of the birds in that morning under the equator, a man, as I become distinguished, who are not in the and be buried there, afar from my land "He who rises late may trot all day, and

It seemed to me, somehow, that the very sunshine felt that it was Christmas, and sparkled for joy a little brighter than ever. We stood at the sitting-room windows, Uncle Ted and I, watching the people hurry past, and everybody had a bright look like the morning, as though there were presents at home and it was. Christmas.

But across there, at the great brown house, the bells kept up an incessant peal. A thought suddenly shot among mine—I kon't know how it came there, but with it I turned and faced Uncle Ted, and two or three minutes afterwards he too turned from the window and caught me looking at him.

"Well, Kathie, what has put that little grave face on you, child? What gre you have come home without hat lated by under the window and I must. Out with hit little did not a many lickings. It cared John's mother from the tropics and waved freshly over me. I shall see the old orchards, too, and the blue smoke rising and shaking out over the roofs in the summer morning to home faces all broken up with love and welcome!' and so the faint life woke up from the hot fever, and stirred strong at my heart."

"But I want to know and I must. Out with it little did not the window and little prove the control of the words! I was as though a cool breath from my native hills had rolled in from the tropics and waved freshly over me. 'I shall see them all again,' I said; the old homes, and the green fields, with the little brooks dimpling and laughing, and slipping away in happy songs among them. There was no use having any more words about it; so I made a clean breast of my thoughts. "I was just thinking, Uncle Ted, that I wondered whether you would not have been a happier and a pleasanter man if you'd got married, too. Then you see you'd have a wife that was all your own to love, and boys and girls about you, to tease, and trouble and bother you all day; and yet it seems to me that it would have been a great deal better than being just as you are now, though of course I don't know."

He looked at me a moment with a curious kind of a smile about his lips, and something half sad in his eyes, I thought. "Little Queen Mab," he said in a minute, "that's a spear thrust at me that no man or woman in the world would have made. Eighteen hundred years ago a babe was born in Bethlehem of Judea. In the light of the wisdom of man this event was no more than another man-child born to a world of suffering and sorrow; another heir to poverty, for of the provisions of this world it had but "swaddling clothes" and was "laid in a manger," but in the councils of heaven it was regarded as an event of the sublimest import, for it was Jesus Christ, the Son of God, become, on earth, incarnate, and as the angelic hosts hovered over that stable upon the sacred plains of Judea they attuned their voices to the noblest anthem that ever ravished human ears: "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good will to Thus was announced to fallen man a full and free salvation, and a promise of the fulfilment of the prophecy: "Unto man a child is born; unto us a son is given; and his name shall be called Wonderful Councillor, the Almighty God. the Everlasting Father, the Prince of NARNOW ESCAPE.—As Edward N. Phelps, the well known clerk and assist, ant to Dr. Brown was attempting to get upon the 5:30 P. M. train for Boston, a few evenings since, while the cars were in motion, his foot slipped and he was thrown (fortunately) by the momentum of the train accey from the rails, and escaped unburt. Had he been thrown in another direction he would propably have been thrown under the wheels and crushed to death or received a lasting bodily injury.

This affords us an opportunity to call attention to the imminent risk of life and limb which many subject themselves to in getting on to or off from the cars while they are in motion. SANTA CLAUS .- No doubt you have neard of dear old Santa Claus ever since you were big enough to hang up a stocking beside the chimney, and you had a half-defined belief in him long after you knew whose kind fingers it was that filled your plates and stockings. Perhaps you would like to know how this name came to be used in connection with Christmas goodies.

Many years ago there was a ministe n a foreign land, who used to be very kind to little children. He never seemed more pleased than when he had a troup of them about him, and he usually had his hands laden with good things for them. So the children always shouted for joy when the good Claudius came among them.

After he was dead the Catholic Church gave him the title of Saint Claudius; and when the merry Christmas times came round, and bright evergreens and crimson holly buds decked out the hall and the cottage, when the little ones woke in the morning to rejoice in their beautiful gifts, it was common for mothers to say that the good Saint Claudius sent them. In the course of years the tradition was lost by the many, and the name was ccr-rupted into the now familiar one of Santa

I think it is as harmless a tradition as the Church of Rome has preserved, and in its modified form has had more believers than any other .- Ex.

JAMES M. COOMS, Editor and Proprieto 525 MILES .- We can hardly keep up with this Union Pacific Railroad. Three weeks ago we read of four hundred and some miles completed, then of five hunweeks more. The vigor with which this pushed forward is one of the wonders even of this wonderful age. Over the tain slopes, and through the defiles bethe work, leaving us no reason to doubt the Atlantic by rail in 1870.

All these great achievements cost mone and a great deal of it. Over forty million dollars have already been expended on the two ends of the line, and yet funds have never been lacking. With directors of great energy and financial experience, Adams, in the decision of great principles, supported by a wealthy and powerful corporation, it is no wonder that "the work goes bravely on." But still, if Uncle Sam had not put his shoulder to the wheel, opened up his purse, and offered his broad acres, the locomotive would not have whistled at Brigham Young for a long time to come. But Uncle Sam's great farm of half a contidians needed a touch of railroad civilization to keep them peaceable, and it was very necessary that he should open those great and rich mountain pockets so full of gold, which nothing but a steam engine could unbutton. It seems wise, therefore, that he should lend Afty million dollars, and give even twenty million acres of land, which would otherwise be worthless. to improve his own property, and take a second mortgage on the greatest railroad in the world for security, especially when his own freight-bills for work done, at a quarter of the old prices, more than pay the interest. But profitable as the investment is to the country, it gives remarkable value and safety to the Company's own First Mortgage bonds. The Government stands behind them, and gives them such a guarantee as it never gave to the securities of any private enterprise. We never desire to recommend anything beyond its actual merit, but we Morse and Field, she stands at the head. think that any one who has 'a thousand dollars to invest, would do well to call upon the Union Pacific Railroad Company's agent, or write to their office, No.

CHRISTMAS .- The many ways of celebrating the return of this anniversary are as varied as the many uninions entertained by those proposing to celebrate The day was very generally observed by the people of Woburn, the stores being closed, and an air of Sabbath quietness pervading our usually busy streets. No doubt many families feasted of the goods provided by our marketmen, and in the evening assembled around the spreading branches of the Christmas Tree to receive the gifts and mutual congratulations. The Methodist society opened their lecture-room doors at an early hour for the assembling of the members of the Sabbath School who were each to be pleased with a small gift to be distributed from the Christmas Tree. A large number of older and younger people were gathered eyes that spake again." In the Baptist Church we found a large number of school children assembled to receive gifts from a beautiful large tree supported by two smaller ones, all being heavily loaded with rich and costly presents, and many parents being present to enjoy the happiness of the little folks. Music was coursed and presents distributed. Rarely do we enjoy a more pleasant sight than we looked upon here. In the Unitarian Church vestry rooms we found a multitude of bright smiling faces. A large Tree occupied a good portion of the room, and from the branches thereof suspended many testimonials of love and friendship. Emblems of "good will to man." After a few introductory remarks from George E. Champney, Esq., who wished the children "a merry christmas" we were pleased by listening to the recitation of a declamation by a young son of Mr. Joseph Kendall, which was delivered in a prompt, distinct, and very pleasing manner. A bright little fellow, may he have, and enjoy, many Christmase Just as we left the various gifts were being handed out, and, as Mr. Champney promised that every boy and girl con nected with the Sabbath School should have a present, we judge that there was unalloyed pleasure in that whole groupe We next visited the Congregational vestry-room and here found a quiet company enjoying themselves by looking at attractive, illuminated views, displayed for the pleaure of the Sabbath school scholars. A quiet hour was passed here and we were much entertained by the exhibition of the views and their explanations. The hard and soft pats of hands demonstrated the enjoyment of the com-

MEETING OF THE FIRST CONGRE-GATIONAL PARISH, HELD DEC. 23D. 1867 .- This meeting was called to see if the parish would concur with the church in extending a call to the Rev. Charles E. Reed, of Malden, to become their pastor. The meeting was fully attended, and very harmonious in its action. A spirit of Christian love and brotherhood seemed to pervade all hearts. Deacon John R. Kimball was chosen Moderator. On notion it was voted to concur with the W. Sanborn. The additional committee chosen by the parish consisted of Stephen Dow, Joseph G. Pollard, Charles A. Smith, and William II. Howland. After singing "Old Hundred" with a unanimity rarely heard, it was voted to dissolve the meeting.

The left were Ice Cream, cake and other articles of refreshment. Supper was provided in the lower hall. The Boston Quartette Club sang a number of songs which added very much to the entertainment. Rev. M. M. Parkburst, of Woburn, made some interesting remarks usited to the occasion.

FIRE.—The alarm of fire given on Wednesday morning last proceeded from the burning of the dwelling-house owned by Mrs. Paige, situated near the Mishawum House, this side of Central Square, and occupied by three families, that of our veterinary surgeon, Dr. Gerald, and Mr. Merriam, and Mrs. Page. The fire broke out about Lalf-past five o'clock, in the upper story, occupied by Mrs. Paige and children. She quickly gave the alarm, but the smothering smoke presented in the profit arising from the advertisements as unto the finances. When we received the copies of the new paper we congratiated ourselves that we were to be relieved from the difficult task which has household goods were removed from the lower part of the house; only a few things around the chimney were left. Only one life lost-a canary bird's. The fire department was present and accomplished what they could, but the house and barn are entirely lost. It is a total loss to Mrs. Paige, as her insurance will barely cover a mortgage upon the property. The fire was occasioned by a defect in the chimney. We learn that a flour barrel, standing in a closet near the chimney, was discovered to be very warm, a day before, but no particular alarm was occasioned. It is now supposed that the fire was even then working its way between the walls. A fire was made the day before in a flue that had not been used of late, and from also provided a "Christmas Tree" and that the fire is supposed to have originat-It is a singular coincidence to relate that when Mrs. Gerald was awakened she exclaimed: "I dreamed this house had burned to the ground, and how hard you worked to get the things out." Her dream was soon realized.

At the Wyman School, where Mr. Johnson is also the teacher in singing, a similar festival came off at 4 o'clock, lasting about the same time, both of which were a source of great enjoyment to the children, as well as affording an opportunity for the parents to show their appreciation of Mr. Johnson's services in the singing department.

In the evening came off the children's festival under the direction of the Unitarias Society in Lyceum Hall. In addition to the decorations used at the Good Templars' entertainment the hall was much more extensively and elaborately dressed in green. From the centre to each corner and around the hall hung festoons of evergreen wreaths and crosses, in great profusion, while in each corner was a pine tree. The Christmas tree (a splendid hemlock) stood upon the platers with the similar to the platers where the contract of the contract was a pine tree. The Christmas tree (a splendid hemlock) stood upon the platers was a pine tree. It is the desire of each of these families to express their heartfelt thanks to the many friends who so cheerfully assisted and comforted them in their trouble.

Strayed—Thomas J. Pierce, Esq., of this town, lost a valuable horse one day last week, and afterwards found him at the ten-mile farm, the horse having found his way there and been well cared for. It was a very cold evening when Mr. Pierce returned home from a short jeurney, and he was hastening to put the horse in the barn, when, in a mood of glood werks, and not least impart to us from the rich store houses be slipped from his hond of the rich store houses of knowledge.

It was rather a strange freak for a horse to leave his home, more especially upon such a high home, more especially upon such a high home, more especially upon such a light, and he must have suffered some from the sharp air, but he at last found good quarters and is now at home, all right.
